PROGRAM

Why a Cross-border Deal?

► Over the past 20 years, we've been living in an increasingly uncertain world, where crisis follows crisis, whether economic, environmental, health, democratic or even military. What if we dared to talk about the future and ask ourselves what our cross-border territories will look like in 2050?

► Because our resources and common goods are becoming increasingly scarce and require us to go beyond our mental and administrative borders, and because they themselves have no borders, what if we dared to manage, preserve, and develop them on the scale of cross-border areas? What if we dared to imagine a differentiated model?

► As we Europeans gradually begin to add the term «European» to economic, energy and agricultural sovereignty, and at a time when the sovereignty of a European state is being threatened to the east of our continent, what if we dared to speak of «cross-border sovereignty» to meet the needs of our current and future populations?

► Because the European promise has always been not only peace between peoples, but also economic and social prosperity, and territorial cohesion, what if we dared to really give ourselves the means of a cross-border cohesion policy? And what if, beyond convergence and solidarity, we gave ourselves the means for genuine cross-border co-development?

► Because citizenship represents a bond of belonging, a political bond as well as a historical and cultural bond, what if we dared to speak of «cross-border citizenship» by promoting our common cultures and histories through education, or by enabling the expression of a cross-border democracy in which citizens would have the right to participate?

Because over the decades, we have gone from a state of «faith» in Europe to a state of «doubt», even though Europe is the solution; because at a time of major transitions, resilience must prevail over resignation; and because the everyday Europe and the feeling of belonging to Europe are played out first and foremost at its internal borders, what if we dared to make a societal, democratic and citizen-centric «cross-border deal»?

Main organiser

The Mission Opérationnelle Transfrontalière (MOT) is the result of a long-term partnership on French borders between cross-border territories and national and European levels. Alongside its members, partners, and European networks, it plays an active role in cross-border policies at all three of these levels.

Objectives of the 3rd Borders Forum:

1. Call on French and European political leaders to open the debate on a «cross-border deal» for territories that concern 40% of Europe and 2 million cross-border workers (including 500,000 in France).

2. Debate the issues of solidarity, sovereignty and reciprocity with two days of exchanges on borders, a topic that marked the 2024 media landscape.

3. Put forward proposals for resolving cross-border obstacles by tackling very concrete issues that impact the daily lives of residents during 10 technical workshops.

Cross-border territories are home to 30% of Europe's population. Two million European workers are cross-border workers.

ROUND TABLE #1

Moderator: Mission Opérationnelle Transfrontalière

No «deal» without the trust of the people. But will a cross-border demos exist in 2050?

In the second half of the 20th century, Europe represented a hope, a promise, sometimes even an ideal for the peoples of Europe and far beyond. Over the past quarter-century, however, this ideal has been undermined, culminating in the rise of Euroscepticism in the most recent European elections. The EU's desire to unite not only states, but also peoples, in all their diversity, is particularly evident at borders, where nationals of different countries come face to face and share daily realities. The sense of belonging, whether to one's own country, region or Europe, is often manifold. On the inner borders of Europe, is it possible to experience a shared identity, a cross-border sense of belonging? In these hybrid yet innovative territories, the question of «cross-border citizenship» is not off the table. This round-table discussion will dare to debate this notion, which is far from a consensus, and discuss belonging beyond borders.

Moderator: Mission Opérationnelle Transfrontalière

No «deal» without solidarity. But are we ready to share our sovereignty across borders?

In a world marked by multiple crises and growing interdependence, solidarity takes on a new dimension in a cross-border context. In the face of economic, environmental, health, democratic and military threats, the notion of «European sovereignty» is gaining ground, but is also showing its limits. Managing today's challenges requires us to go beyond our mental and administrative boundaries, and consider solutions on the scale of cross-border areas... but are we ready to talk about «cross-border sovereignty» to meet the needs of our current and future populations?

The European promise of peace and prosperity today calls for greater cohesion and a move beyond national boundaries towards genuine cross-border co-development. This round table explores these concepts to imagine a future where sovereignty and solidarity are reinvented beyond borders.

A cross-border deal for 2050: what concrete proposals?

In this final session, a dynamic exchange will take place between the spokespersons of the technical workshops and high-level speakers. Through the feedback from the morning's workshops, the dialogue will reflect the commitment to the future of Europe and the expectations of those who create the Europe of everyday life. The speakers will react, question and enrich the proposals with their own visions for 2050. The discussions thus become a collective reflection: how can we join forces to build a more integrated Europe by 2050? What is the future of cross-border cooperation? Ideas emerge, disagreements are voiced, but the common objective remains clear: to work together towards an ambitious «cross-border deal», based on solidarity, innovation and commitment for the decades to come.

WORKSHOP #1

«Cross-border citizen participation: Fact or fiction?»

Led by: Strasbourg Eurometropolis, Euro-Institut de Kehl

Citizen participation is all the rage. But what about on a cross-border territory? Can such a tool be used to build or reinforce a shared sense of belonging to the same cross-border living area, to build common public policies, to develop cross-border public transport, to create a shared infrastructure or public service? What impact(s) does cross-border citizen participation have on the emergence of «cross-border citizenship?»

► This workshop will address these questions through a variety of case studies, giving the floor to participants within the framework of a «bottom-up» approach.

WORKSHOP #2

«Culture as a vehicle for cross-border citizenship»

Led by: Eurhena EGTC, Collectivité européenne d'Alsace (European Territorial Authority of Alsace)

Can culture and its challenges (new places, creations, co-productions, itineraries, cross-border citizen councils) foster a sense of belonging to the specificity of a border territory? Discover how bi-cities, citizens and institutions are building a common identity. What initiatives in Europe combine emotions, values and residents' perspectives to encourage cooperation? In this workshop, two sub-groups will explore tools to encourage adherence to cross-border heritage (tangible and intangible): one will focus on Franco-German and German-Polish projects, the other on the role of citizen participation and new cultural markers.

WORKSHOP #3

«Urban planning across borders »

Led by: Gustave Eiffel University

This workshop is part of the ANR research project GeRTrUD (Gestion et Régulation Transfrontalière de l'Urbanisation Diffuse), which studies cross-border urbanization phenomena and the way in which stakeholders organize themselves to deal with them. Although cooperation mechanisms exist, urban planning and land management often remain national affairs. Some initiatives are seeking to coordinate planning actions and create common mechanisms. This workshop aims to share experiences, identify the obstacles to cooperation and suggest possible approaches for new experiments.

► Charlotte Le Gouic, Spatial Planning Manager and Urbanization Project Manager, Metropolitan Pole of the French Genevois (FR)

► Julita Miłosz-Augustowska, Spatial Planning Office of the West Pomeranian Voivodeship in Szczecin (PL)

WORKSHOP #4

« Cross-border public transport: A co-development challenge »

Led by: Collectivité de Saint-Martin (Saint-Martin Territorial Authority), Trans-missions

This workshop is aimed at representatives of border regions facing difficulties in organizing cross-border public transport. It includes the presentation of a case study on the territory of Saint-Martin and a study conducted by Spatial Foresight for the European Commission on obstacles to the organization of cross-border transport. An exchange between participants from other territories and European experts on various types of obstacles will then enable new proposals to be drawn up, and help bring a «cross-border deal» on the challenges of cross-border public transport to life.

WORKSHOP #5

« Water across borders: A source of cooperation?»

Led by: Lille-Kortrijk-Tournai Eurometropolis, Basque Country Conurbation Community

The aim of this workshop is to illustrate water management issues (big and small cycles) in cross-border territories. Participants will be able to experiment with the methodologies and tools developed by territorial stakeholders (including the GIS Littoral basque, the Schéma d'aménagement et de gestion des eaux...) and to put into practice this innovative, cross-cutting approach on two emblematic cases: river pollution in the Belgian cross-border zone and the management of a toxic algae in a coastal zone.

► Loïc Delhuvence, Deputy Director of Territorial Strategy and European Affairs, Belgian intermunicipal company IDETA (BE)

► Léon Dhaene, Secretary General, International Scheldt Commission (FR/BE/NL)

WORKSHOP #6

« Ecological planning in cross-border living areas»

Led by: National Agency for Territorial Cohesion (ANCT)

To succeed in the ecological transition, reduce greenhouse gas emissions and preserve biodiversity, France has launched an «ecological planning» plan with precise objectives and levers for action. After a national phase, a regional approach began at the end of 2023, involving local players. The next step will be to implement the plan on the scale of living areas. The workshop aims to compare European ecological planning methods, share cross-border diagnoses and action plans, and suggest ways of adapting these strategies.

► Yves Le Breton, Prefect of Haute-Savoie (FR)

► Christian Dupessey, President of the Pôle métropolitain du Genevois français (FR)

WORKSHOP #7

« Europe and cross-border healthcare, cooperation and governance »

Led by: the cross-border hospital of Cerdanya

Healthcare does not fall within the competences of the European Union, although the Union supports, coordinates or complements the action of Member States in the sphere of protecting and improving human health (Article 6 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU). Thus, the development of cross-border healthcare areas relies on the initiatives of states and local players, essential for adapting public policies to the specific needs of border populations. This workshop aims to identify current governance tools for inter-state cooperation in this field, and to define new instruments to make the integration of these healthcare territories real and effective.

Led by: Lille European Metropolis, Département du Nord, Lille-Kortrijk-Tournai Eurometropolis

This workshop will illustrate the stages and conditions involved in setting up information and support services for citizens living on the Franco-Belgian border, with stakeholders, public service operators, and members of civil society. The workshop will highlight partnerships and how individual initiatives converge in a collective proactive approach. The workshop will aim to find parallels between this Franco-Belgian dynamic and inspiring experiences on other borders.

WORKSHOP #9

« Cross-border financial solidarity: Global workshop »

Led by: Borders in Globalization (BIG)

In the European context, cross-border cooperation is often reduced to Interreg projects, but this is a reductive assumption. Some borders present strategic challenges and asymmetrical interdependencies (river basins, cross-border labor flows), requiring new public policies such as fiscal agreements. This global workshop, based on examples from Europe, Africa and Latin America, will put into perspective the notions of coordination, cooperation and collaboration, and even financial solidarity, to better meet these challenges.

« Eastern borders: Between war and enlargement »

Led by: ESPON European Program, Central European Service for Cross-Border Initiatives (CESCI), and Association of European Border Regions (AEBR)

Facing the negative consequences of the Russian war against Ukraine and the promising but challenging perspective of the enlargement of the EU, eastern border regions are actively looking for more resilient and cohesive development models. This workshop will explore the challenges and opportunities for EU eastern border regions to act as wave breakers, being the first to absorb the repercussions of geopolitical shocks such as sudden changes in migration flows, security policy, public finance and private investment, trade and value chains.

Borders Forum partners in 2024

THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION plays a key role in the development of cross-border cooperation in Europe. In the summer of 2021, the Commission published a report setting out its priorities for «border regions» as tools for European integration. For the 2021-2027 period, it proposes that funding for territorial cooperation (Interreg) should pay greater attention to these territories in order to stimulate recovery in border areas, where economies have often been particularly disrupted by the health crisis. Through its «Border Focal Point», the Commission places cross-border issues at the heart of its priorities. The MOT maintains close links with DG Regional and Urban Policy (REGIO), the department in charge of EU regional policy, while its network regularly contributes to the European Commission's consultations, to help ensure that cross-border territories are taken into account in EU policies.
